

Environmental Law Databases

Current through January 9, 2009

Westlaw provides environmental law professionals with a comprehensive collection of databases that relate to environmental protection and the conservation of natural resources. Case law, statutes, and administrative databases cover government regulation of radioactive, solid, and toxic waste management; pollution; and clean air and water acts.

In addition, legal texts and periodicals on Westlaw provide practitioners with expert commentary and practice tips regarding compliance with environmental regulations. News and business information databases cover environmental issues and waste management, as well as scientific information about the toxic effects of pollution and other chemical substances.

For assistance using Westlaw, call 1-800-WESTLAW (1-800-937-8529).
